

I object to private for profit and out of state companies coming to Iowa and using eminent domain to take land from any landowner for their personal gain. If one company is granted the right to do this, where does it stop? These transmission lines are an eyesore and quite possibly have some health concerns associated with them and in this case the people of Iowa will not benefit from them. This is not cheap energy and I think there are other better means of cutting carbon emissions.