(Statement of the nature of the objection(s))

farm land for a utility service that does not benefit Iowans. Additionally, the placement of transmission towers on valuable farm land interferes with production at the site of the tower and the surrounding area now and for the foreseeable future, thereby reducing the land's value.

RICL takes no responsibility for damage to farm land, damage due to fallen power lines, or the possible negative health effects of HVDC on humans. And finally, RICL is under no obligation for removing obsolete towers from farm land.

(Use additional sheets, if necessary)

D. Do not permit a private company eminent domain rights to private Iowa land. If eminent domain is granted, require RICL to compensate land owners for the adequately for the value and freedom lost; require RICL to repair damage done to farm land during the placement and maintenance of the towers; require RICL to assume responsibility for damage done by fallen lines or failing towers; require RICL to remove obsolete towers and repair farm land should their mission of providing electricity to Illinois citizens become redundant or obsolete.
